MRS. FLOYD S. LAMB gave a most charming luncheon yesterday at 1 o'clock in honor of Mrs. William Amick of Muskogee, the guest of Mrs. Edward F. Davis. The luncheon tables were attractive with center pieces of pink roses and white hyacinths in large flower bowls. The place cards and other appointments carried out the same color scheme. The guests were Mrs. David McKinstry, Richard A. Vose, Alden Vose, Charles Edward Johnson, Millard H. Russell, William J. Pette, Walter D. Caldwell, Frederick B. Owen, William S. Bulkeley, Russell B. Halliburton, Guy L. Blackwelder, Louis Kolbourne, John H. Frederickson, B. O. Young, Edmund S. Ferguson, Albert P. Knight, Colin S. Campbell, George L. Cooke and Edward F. Davis.

Miss Jerline Dick entertained with a beautifully appointed 1 o'clock luncheon today the details of which were carried out in pink. Her guests were Mrs. Robert Smith, Charles O. Thompson, Ray Wells, Frederick Quail, Phil Kiggan, Raymond P. Day, Misses Helen Stuckey, Ruth Stuckey, Melrose Brown, Helen Pugh, Gail Locke, Inez Masterson, Grace Seale, Ruth Sandler and Katherine Zarnman.

Miss Virginia Young, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Young, entertained a few of her little friends informally at luncheon and the theater today.

Mrs. Hunter A. Craycraft and Miss Dorothy Craycraft will entertain on Friday, January 19, with a 1 o'clock luncheon bridge in honor of Mrs. Orrin Lea Harrison of Dallas.

Mrs. Jacques Dur will entertain with a 1 o'clock luncheon on Tuesday, January 23.

Mrs. R. A. Wheeler had as her guests at the Overholser this afternoon in honor of Mrs. S. H. Harrellson of Kansas City, Mrs. H. C. Reynolds, Mrs. R. S. Reynolds, Mrs. C. R. Tatum and Mrs. C. B. Reville.

Mrs. Harrellson is returning tomorrow to Kansas City.

It seems that a number of the invitations to the reception to be given this evening at the Lee-Huckins hotel, from 8 to 10 o'clock, in honor of the state legislators and their families, the federated club women of the city, the ministers and their wives and the teachers of Oklahoma City and the state issued by the State Women's Suffrage association, and the local branch of that organization, both of which are auxiliary to the National Women's Suffrage association, have gone astray. The ladies request that anyone included in this list who has failed to receive the invitation will please know that they are expected and most cordially welcome.

Mrs. James Mee of Centerville, S. D., arrived yesterday to visit Mr. and Mrs. William Mee and Mr. and Mrs. G. Lawrence Kellogg.

The many friends of Mrs. T. W. Williamson, who underwent a minor operation at Wesley hospital Thursday, will be glad to know that she is recovered sufficiently to be taken home.

Mrs. Samuel W. Hayes returned Thursday from a week's visit in Chickasha.

Mrs. W. G. Harwood of Lexington, Mo., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Harwood.

Mr. Robert Gullman returned Thursday to St. Mary's, Kan., to re-enter school.

The Wednesday Luncheon club will meet next week with Mrs. C. Edgar Hamilton.

Miss Beas Stewart and Miss Margaret Colcord were the hostesses for the Friday Golf club yesterday. Miss Stewart making the low score. The hostesses for next week will be announced.

Mrs. R. Alex Wells entertained the Friday Card club yesterday with Mrs. R. A. Jones as a guest. The high scores were made by Mrs. Lee Davis and Mrs. Fred Coffman. The club will meet Friday with Mrs. Charles H. Ruth.

The Friday Seven o'clock Dinner club met last night with Mr. and Mrs. G. Pickering, when Mrs. A. L. Thomas and Mr. J. Harry Hamilton made the high scores. The club will meet in two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Strong.

The Arts and Crafts club met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Frank E. Fay. Mrs. H. H. Calvin, the leader of the day's lesson, spoke of various prominent women of the present day. Mrs. James O. Stevenson then read a paper on Julia Ward Howe. The next meeting of the club is January 26 with Mrs. C. D. Ziegler.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Thompson entertained the Esere Whist club last evening, having as additional guests Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Haubach, Mrs. W. A. Gullman and Mrs. Don Santoni. The high scores were made by Mrs. Santoni and Mr. M. M. Pohl. Mrs. Thompson was assisted in serving by Miss Elma Haubach. The club will meet in two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. James M. Chapman.

The L'Art Dramatique met yesterday at the home of the Misses Flossie and Maxine Hughes. Several noted plays were the study of the afternoon, a paper on "The Servant in the House" being read by Miss Flossie Hughes and one on "Every Youth" by Miss Ida Gilbert. A piano solo by Miss Maxine Hughes concluded the program, which was followed by informal dancing. The club will meet Thursday with Misses Ruby and Frances Boydston when "guest day" will be observed.

Mrs. G. L. Green entertained the members of the Friday Rose Bridge club at 1 o'clock luncheon at the Skirvin yesterday. Ivory baskets of sweet peas formed the central decorations of the luncheon tables with hand-painted place and score cards as favors. The special guests of the afternoon were Mrs. G. H. Purvis of Fort Worth, Mrs. Henry Lindlow, Mrs. C. H. Converse, Mrs. Fay Thompson, Mrs. C. B. Kline, Mrs. H. H. Lee and Mrs. A. R. Hickman. The guest favor was awarded

Creamed Celery.

TWO cups of celery, three-fourths of a cup of almonds, one cup of water, three cups of milk or cream, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of cornstarch and salt to taste. Cut celery into small pieces, put into double boiler with water and let come to a boil. Add milk or cream and cook until tender. Blanch almonds and cut into small pieces. Add to mixture. Melt butter and make a smooth paste with cornstarch and stir gradually into celery. Add salt last. Mrs. Charles W. Hubicka, 225 West Potawatonic.

Scalp Affected by Itching and Scratching, Was Disfigured. Completely Healed by Cuticura. Cost $1.50.

"I began to lose my hair, it came out in three places making me bald. A couple of months later my head began to itch which caused me to scratch. I could not sleep for the itching, as it made me scratch so that my scalp was irritated and I had large scales on it. My hair came out by handfuls and got lifeless and dry. It disfigured me. I was ashamed."

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

By Adele Garrison.

How Katie Said "Good-by" Mother Graham Departed and Made the Lotus Study Club.

"G"OOT-BY, gnot-by, my dear, gnot Missis Graham. I never never can thank you all you do for me and Jim. I never forget, never! Ven I come back I wait on you just as if you was baby all day long."

Katie stood on the veranda steps, attired in her white wedding dress and of clothes, freshly barbered, and his honest face aglow with embarrassed joy, was on the path below waiting for her.

A grinning taxi driver also waited, holding open the door of the machine which was to bear Katie and Jim to the little church in the village where they were to be married.

Whether from embarrassment or for some other reason neither Katie nor Jim had appeared especially to desire our presence at the ceremony, an attitude which much relieved Dicky and me.

They were to go straight from the church to the home of Jim's mother and father, where a wedding feast was to be served to Jim's cronies. Jim had already carefully taken over to his mother's home Katie's traveling suit and hat, while the suitcase with the things she wished to take with her on their little trip he had deposited proudly in the taxi.

I knew that Dicky was grinning in ecstatic enjoyment of my embarrassment as Katie poured out the details of her emotional gratitude upon me.

Katie was making a distinct drama of leaving us to be married, and was enjoying herself immensely, although I feared that the tears which stood in her eyes might become the torrent of tears in which Katie sometimes indulges.

"There, there, Katie," I said, trying to calm her by the quiet of my own manner, "you'll only be gone a week, after all, so you really shouldn't say good-by at all. Now run along with Jim, my dear, and take my very best wishes for your wedding. I kissed her lightly on the cheek as I spoke."

It did not need the snort that I heard from my mother-in-law standing in the door of the dining room to tell me that she utterly disapproved of so familiar an action toward my maid, but to me it seemed utterly pitiful that Katie should go to her wedding with no woman relative near to kiss her and wish her goodspeed. I would not have omitted that good-by caress if a hundred mother-in-laws had made me feel the weight of their disapproval for doing it.

At my words and kiss Katie threw her arms around me, regardless of the way she was crushing her pretty wedding dress, hugged me convulsively, returned my kiss with a hearty smack that must have sent horrors down my mother-in-law's back and dashed down the steps to the waiting Jim.

"Come now, Jim," she said briskly. "I'm ready now. We go quick before I cry."

She sprang into the taxicab before Jim had a chance to help her, and in another minute they were whirled out of sight.

"I'm glad that's over," Mother Graham commented grimly. "One would think, Margaret, that Katie was your dearest friend to see the farewell you gave her."

My mother-in-law's tone was even more caustic than her words. I knew that she was simply spoiling for a good old-fashioned row, but I did not intend to give her the chance to begin a quarrel.

"I do not know that I have a more faithful friend than Katie," I said quietly, and then more briskly: "Is there anything I can do for you, Mother Graham, before you go?"

"Oh, no, thank you," she returned with the crushing dignity which she put on when she is displeased. "I have everything ready, and can start at any moment."

"Very well, then," I returned. "Dicky and you can easily make that 9-50 express from Crest Haven. I will try to see you before I go to the study club this afternoon, but if I shouldn't get there, don't wait luncheon for me."

"I don't wait luncheon for anybody," my mother-in-law returned tartly, and went to her room.

Off to Lillian's.

I was glad when she and Dicky finally got away and I could go unhindered at the many last little tasks which preceded my locking up the house for the week.

When they were finished I dressed carefully for my lecture to the Lotus club in a rather elaborate gown of dark blue charmeuse. The little sport suit I was to wear on the boat I packed carefully in a light pasteboard box. The hat which went with it I wore, as I was to change it at Lillian's for the fetching little creation I had bought under Lillian's supervision.

As I locked up the house and stood waiting on the veranda with my box for the taxi which was to bear me to the station I felt all the glee of a child let out of school for a holiday. It did not seem possible that I should really have a whole week's holiday with Dicky.

I felt that I begrudged even the afternoon which I had to spend with the Lotus Study Club. Usually I enjoyed my sessions with the club, but on this particular afternoon I looked forward to my talk before them with dread instead of pleasant anticipation.

I snatched a bite of lunch in the grill at the railroad station, and then went straight to Lillian's, where I furnished up a bit, donned my new hat, and made ready for my everybody's ordeal.

Why Everybody Gaped.

Lillian held me off from her and looked me over critically when I was ready to start.

"You'll put all their eyes out," she said, extravagantly, as she kissed me. "Don't let that old Smith cut put anything over on you today."

I could not help smiling at Lillian's disrespectful allusion to the august secretary of the Lotus Study Club, Mrs. Helen Brainerd Smith. I had told her the history of my notable clash with Mrs. Smith upon the occasion of my first lecture, when she had offered me only half of the stipend we had agreed upon, because the women of the club had not finished their routine business in time for me to have but one-half of the time allotted me.

I had come off decidedly the victor upon that occasion, and Mrs. Smith had never forgotten it. She was the richest woman in the club, and by virtue of her position and wealth a veritable dictator. I knew that it was a distinct triumph for me when the women of the history section unanimously voted to engage me for another year's lectures at an increased stipend. It was one of the rare occasions in which her personal preference had been outweighed by the wishes of the members, and I knew she bore me no good will for it.

I was to meet her this afternoon for the first time in months. I dreaded the cool, airy, almost insolent patronage with which I knew she would treat me. But it was about the only penalty of a very pleasant and lucrative position, so I resolved to ignore her unpleasantness as much as possible.

As I entered the club rooms, which were already well filled with women, I heard a unanimous gasp of astonishment. In another moment I knew the cause, for advancing toward me, with tightly compressed lips and flashing eyes, was Mrs. Smith, stately, gray-haired, faultlessly attired as ever. But on her head was the exact counterpart of the hat I was wearing, rolled brim, emme trimming, even the red rose.

Better Menu Contest

EDITOR'S NOTE: Prizes of $5 each will be awarded for the best menu for a day's meals for 2, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 people submitted during this contest. Fifty cents will be paid for every menu considered good enough to publish. The best menu submitted each week will appear in a special page in the Times on Friday and will entitle the writer to $5 worth of groceries.

MENU FOR THREE.

Breakfast.
Sliced Oranges.
Cream of Wheat and Cream.
Buttered Toast with Honey.
Coffee.

Lunch.
Macaroni with Cheese.
Graham Biscuits with Butter.
Lettuce Salad.
Vanilla Waters.

Dinner.
Vegetable Soup.
Roast Beef, Brown Gravy.
Potatoes in Half Shell.
Creamed Cauliflower.
Stewed Peas.
Bread.
Peaches with Whipped Cream.
Mahogany Cake.
Coffee.

Graham Biscuits.—Mix one cup of graham flour, one-half cup of white flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon sugar and one-half teaspoons of baking powder. Chop one tablespoon of butter or lard into the mixture and add one cup of milk. If the mixture is then too stiff to handle, add some water. Turn upon a floured board roll and cut, handling as little as possible. Bake in a steady oven.

Potatoes in Half Shell.—Select medium sized potatoes and bake. When thoroughly done, cut crosswise in halves and scrape out the white. Mix with butter, milk, salt and pepper to taste, then place the mixture back in the potato shells. Place on a bed of lettuce leaves.

Mahogany Cake.—Cream together one egg and three-fourths cup of sugar; add one-fourth cup of lard, one-fourth cup of sour milk, into which has been stirred one-half teaspoon of soda, one-fourth cup of cocoa, partly filled up with hot water and one cup of flour. Do not beat the egg and the result is better. This cake is one of the best and least expensive of any cake I have baked. Mrs. H. B. K., Shawnee, Okla.

Suggestions.

This menu is well planned. In the dinner, peas are unnecessary with the beef. Potatoes and cauliflower are of the right variety and sufficient. She has only served meat once—a good point if the family is satisfied.

Healdton Crude Oil to 90 Cents

ARDMORE, Okla., Jan. 13.—(Special.)—The Magnolia Petroleum company today advanced the price of Healdton crude oil to 90 cents a barrel, an increase of 5 cents from the previous price.

Jailer's Salary Raised.

PURCELL, Okla., Jan. 13.—(Special.)—The county commissioners have fixed the salary of the undersheriff, or jailer, at $75 per month. The retiring officer was allowed only $1 per month. Appointed by the sheriff, the commissioners could not force him to resign, and as his services were not satisfactory, his salary was cut down. He was allowed a certain amount for the board of the prisoners, however.

One of British War Leaders Was Born in Germany

LONDON, Jan. 13.—By the irony of fate Lord Milner, one of the "big five" to whom England has turned over the responsibility for directing the war against Germany, was himself born in the land of the kaiser, and received there his early education. Nevertheless, he is as loyal to England—his mother's native country and his own by adoption—as any of her sons.

His lordship, amongst his other gifts, has a facility, almost amounting to genius, for mastering languages. It is said that within a very few months after reaching South Africa to take up his duties as high commissioner, he was so proficient in the Dutch language that he was able to converse fluently with Boer statesmen. With hardly an exception the leading languages of Europe are at the tip of his tongue.
